Project Description

U.S. Embassy Beijing's Economic Section is looking for an intern to monitor, research, and analyze Chinese investment in the United States. The intern will conduct open source research to develop weekly summaries of significant events relating to Chinese investment in the United States, including investments by Chinese state-owned and private sector enterprises. The intern will have the opportunity to draft policy papers in areas of interest, develop databases to track investment, and complete other written research documents. This internship is perfect for students interested in China's growing economic influence around the world.
